Transfigured in Christ

In the second Sunday of Lent, the Church meditates on the mysterious scene of the Transfiguration. Jesus took His three closest apostles up a "high mountain" (probably Mount Tabor) where He was transfigured before them. He became luminous before His Apostles and there was a manifestation of the Divine Trinity where the voice of the Father was heard and a bright cloud descended upon them (the cloud is one of the many ways the Holy Spirit manifests Himself to us). As Jesus revealed a glimpse of His glory as God, the Father spoke: "This is my beloved Son...listen to Him". Beside Jesus there appeared two great figures of the Old Testament: Moses and Elijah, who were speaking with Jesus. Although Matthew does not tell us what the Prophets were speaking with Jesus about, Luke says it was about His "exodus", that is, about His passion and death He was about to undergo in Jerusalem. The apostles, before this manifestation of the Divine Trinity, were full of fear and prostrated themselves on the ground until Jesus told them to rise.

What does all this mean? Firstly, as Jesus approached His passion and death, He wanted the Apostles to be reassured of who He was and that the scandal of the cross was all in God's plan. Jesus was revealing here not only His own divinity, but also the mystery of the Divine Trinity once again. The presence of the prophets reminds us that Jesus is the fulfillment of the both the old and new covenants.
